The Danbury Community Health Center at 8 Delay St., is offering people a free health screening Saturday from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

The screening will cover immunization screening, blood pressure screening, dental screening, information about Medicaid programs, early detection screenings, housing and health department information, WIC program information, diabetes education, nutrition counseling and fun for children, including face painting, raffle prizes and music.

"Every day in our primary care centers, I witness the value of having a health care home," said Mark Masselli, president and CEO of CHC., Inc. "When people have a place to go for regular care, they use it and stay healthier."

This free screening is being offered as part of National Health Center Week. CHC, which has a headquarters in Middletown, will be offering similar programs in New London, Norwalk, New Britain, Middletown and Stamford.

In capitalism, when you can't find a customer, you lower your price. Even the federal government understands that. The premiums have now dropped by 20% to 40%, depending on your age, circumstance and state. If you considered this pre-existing coverage plan before and found it too costly, give it a look now. best would be to check "Penny Health" for your health insurance
