WHAT ARE CHCs?

Community Health Centers (CHCs) such as Primary Care of Southwest Georgia, are non-profit, community-governed organizations. They offer primary health care, health promotion, and community outreach services, using multi-disciplinary teams of health care providers. These teams often include physicians, physician assistants, nurse practitioners, nurses, social workers, and others (i.e. dentists).

CHCs have been in existence in Georgia since the early 1970's; today, there are over 27 CHC's and 124 Sattelite locations across the state.

Services are designed to meet the specific needs of those experiencing barriers in healthcare (i.e. financial, cultural/linguistic, transportation, and literacy). In addition, CHCs provide a variety of health promotion and illness prevention services which focus on addressing and raising awareness of the broader determinants of health, such as employment, education, environment, isolation, and poverty.

Patients who qualify for the discount program may also be eligible to receive discounts on prescription medications at a local pharmacy.

OTHER BENEFITS OF CHCs

- Provides health care for the entire family
- Improved quality of life for residents
- Support for the healthcare safety net
- Savings from inappropriate use of Emergency Rooms
- Partners with existing health care infrastructure
- New Jobs
- Quality care based on current clinical guidelines
