Midnight on Main was a huge success

To the editor:

Midnight on Main 2011 was a huge success! From buying an oil painting at the Haitian store, to rockin' at the First Church, we sang & clapped to the sound of the Brazilian trio at the Salvation Army, we saw a short film, "American in Paris," at the Middletown Police Station, walked until our legs and feet got tired and finally laughed until we cried over peach smoothies and mocha coffee at Javapalooza.

It was the best New Year's we have spent in awhile. Thanks to all who participated.

New Year's event exceeded expectations

To the editor:

Last night Middletown had its own miracle on Main Street.

Midnight on Main, Middletown's first New Year's Eve festival, was a runaway success, exceeding everyone's expectations.

People came from other towns as well, making it a destination event that will surely surpass itself next year.

For such an event to be so wildly successful on the first try speaks to the genius and hard work of the Community Health Center, the support of the Chamber of Commerce, our city services, and the legions of volunteers.

The performers were well chosen and fabulous. Midnight On Main gave us all another wonderful example of how well Middletown works to provide wholesome entertainment and bring us all together as a community.
