

Open Door Family Medical Centers Named Semifinalist for the 2012 Nonprofit Excellence Awards
The New York Community Trust and New York Magazine Announce 10 Semifinalists

“Nonprofits enrich the lives of all New Yorkers and it is excellent management, as shown by these 10 semifinalists, that make their contribution to our communities possible.”

—Lorie A. Slutsky, president, The New York Community Trust

The New York Community Trust and New York Magazine have announced that Open Door Family Medical Centers is one of the 10 semifinalists for the 2012 The New York Community Trust—New York Magazine Nonprofit Excellence Awards. Now in its sixth year, the awards honor outstanding management practices and encourage innovation and communication among New York’s large and diverse nonprofit community. Since 2007, the Nonprofit Coordinating Committee of New York (NPCC) and Philanthropy New York have managed this program, which is open to nonprofit organizations based in New York City, Long Island and Westchester. The 2012 Awards are also sponsored by WNYC.

“Open Door is excited to have been named as a semi-finalist and recognized for innovation and leading management and communication practices in our sector. We believe that meeting our mission efficiently and effectively is a significant aspect of our community stewardship. Our mission is to make sure that everyone, particularly the most vulnerable, have access to the best medical care,” said Lindsay Farrell, President & CEO of Open Door.

The 10 semifinalist organizations, which vary in size and in type of services they offer the community, were chosen by the program’s 28-member Selection Committee for their outstanding management practices. Along with Open Door, the semifinalists are:

- Coalition for Asian American Children and Families
- Global Kids
- Harlem RBI
- iMentor
- Make-A-Wish Metro New York and Western New York
- Red Hook Initiative
- The Children’s Village
- Women’s Housing and Economic Development Corp.
- YMCA of Greater New York

“Nonprofits enrich the lives of all New Yorkers and it is excellent management, as shown by these 10 semifinalists, that make their contribution to our communities possible,” said Lorie A. Slutsky, president, The New York Community Trust (NYCT), which is sponsoring the awards program for the first time this year. “This year’s semifinalists represent a diverse cross-section of our vibrant nonprofit sector and are effectively using strong management practices to advance their missions and the well-being of our city.”

“New York City area nonprofits are among the best managed in the country,” according to Michael E. Clark, president, Nonprofit Coordinating Committee of New York. “These Awards recognize how creative and essential their excellent management practices are to enriching all of our lives.”

“Donors want to feel confident that their contributions are not just going to a good cause, but to organizations that manage their people and resources effectively,” said Ronna D. Brown, president, Philanthropy New York. “The 10 semifinalists announced today are not just well managed organizations, but also exceedingly credible authorities on the significant challenges that even the best-run nonprofit organizations face in the current climate. We applaud each and every one.”

Each of the 10 semifinalists will now be asked to submit a second application about their management practices that will be reviewed by the Selection Committee in September. The top 6 finalists will be announced on October 3rd. After a series of site visits to those ten, three winners will be announced on November 15 at a special event.

A total of $40,000 will be awarded to three organizations, with $25,000 going to the Gold Prize winner for Overall Management Excellence, $10,000 to the Silver Prize winner and $5,000 to the Bronze Prize winner for outstanding performance in nonprofit management.

Each of the three winning organizations will also receive a scholarship toward tuition at the Social Enterprise Programs in Executive Education at Columbia Business School.

The awards will be presented to the three winners at a Best Practices Workshop and Awards Presentation in New York City on November 15, 2012.

Additional financial and in-kind support this year is provided by The New York Community Trust, The Clark Foundation, Ford Foundation, McGladrey LLP, the Fund for the City of New York and the Programs in Social Enterprise at Columbia Business School Executive Education.
